Morris & Robin Smith's Koi Journey

We became interested in koi ponds when we decided we wanted to create a garden in our backyard. At that time it was grass with a couple of trees. We visited the Southeastern Flower show that year and met Susan Wise at the AKC booth. We talked with Susan for 20 to 30 minutes. She explained what was involved. After talking with her we were hooked. We started buying books and searching the web for information. Shortly after we were pumping water. We joined the club after that. Looking back it would have been wiser to join the club, ask for advice from the experienced ponders, and then build our pond.

May Meeting Program and Special Event!

Vicki Vaughan will be the speaker. She will talk about Israeli koi, and explain the difference between various KHV studies. She will also bring about 200 small koi for sale. Now's the time to stock up.

A Pond Screening

No this is not about a photo shoot for a magazine or a HGTV show. This is about a use of screen cloth. On our pond we have a Savio skimmer. The skimmer has a removable cage in the back chamber containing a matting pad. The matting pad will catch finer particles than the leaf basket in the front chamber. While the matting might be a media for some bacteria growth, it is not large enough to be considered as part of the overall bio conversion of ammonia to nitrite to nitrate. OK, so what's the problem? Matting, any matting, is a pain to clean. Granted it is not nearly as bad as sheets of foam, but it's still matting.

I made a modification to the skimmer's removable cage making it much easier to clean. I replaced the matting pad with two sheets of fiberglass screen cloth. Yes, that's screen cloth you purchased at your local DIY store to repair the screen door the dog ran through, again. I purchased the smallest roll of screen cloth I could find also purchased a 3.7 ounce tube of E6000 adhesive at a local craft store.

Steps:

1. Take the skimmer's matting pad cage out of the skimmer. Separate the two halves. Set aside the matting pad. Thoroughly clean both halves of the cage so that the adhesive can adhere properly. Set the cage aside to dry.
2. Cut two rectangles of fiberglass screen cloth that are each 13.75"x18.75".
3. After the cage is dry, test fit a sheet of sheeting on the INSIDE of each half of the cage. Trim as needed.
4. On the inside of both halves of the cage, apply a small bead (around 1/8" wide) of E6000 on all the rails and stiles.
5. Carefully insert one piece of screening on the inside of each half of the cage. Gently press the screen into the bead of E600 and smooth out the bead. Let the E6000 cure overnight. The next day assemble the two halves of the cage and insert it into the skimmer.

To clean the screens, remove the cage (notice how much lighter it is!). Use a hose at 45 degree angle and spray off the front and back. Turn the cage upside down and spray both side again. It is ready for another duty cycle. Gee, wasn't that an easier cleaning cycle than messing with that matting pad? I thought so also.

Roaring Mouse in Cyber Space

http://japanese-cool.co.uk/japanese_cooler_008.htm

This is the neatest web-site. It's in England. Their artwork is breathtaking. The URL in this article is the page with koi art. Remember that prices are in Pounds Sterling ... but if you use a currency conversion chart on <http://www.xe.com/ucc/>, you can figure out how much this costs. The credit cards all have no problems doing international transactions..... You might enjoy something this exciting... Grab that mouse and ROAR!

This beautiful Koi Slate is approximately 24 inches tall and koi inlay is about 15 inches tall. Koi depicted is one of the most famous Grand Champion Koi ever grown. The Dianichi Showa is the only koi to ever win both the ZNA and the Combined All Japan Shows. Slate's estimated value is $2,000.

Peter Enfield has made another extremely generous donation of one of his custom made koi slates to the AKCA PROJECT KHV. Peter and his wife Silvia live in Oregon and are avid koi hobbyists. Peter is well known for his beautiful and unique pieces of koi art. Peter starts with a photograph of a Grand Champion Koi to create his glass patterns. He takes a beautiful piece of gray slate and carves out the powerful koi shape. Next he takes special fusible stained glass and cuts it into the koi's unique patterns. The pieces of cut glass are put together like a jigsaw puzzle and then fired in a special glass kiln to fuse it into a solid glass koi. Then the fused glass koi is fitted into the indentation in the prepared piece of slate to create an extraordinarily beautiful and unique piece of koi art.

Unlike our perishable pets, Peter's koi art is timeless. His koi colors will never fade. The vibrant reds, porcelain whites, and shiny ebony blacks are perfect. Peter creates the beautiful image of Grand Champion koi floating on the surface of a deep dark crystal clear pond.

Many koi hobbyists have been trying to obtain one of Peter's koi/slate art pieces for years, however; Peter does not sell his creations. One way to get Peter's koi slates are to win the Annual AKCA Bob Spindola, Champion of Champions, Award. This award and accompanying piece of Peter's koi art is given to the top Koi chosen from photos of all the Grand Champion Koi winners at Koi shows in the USA. Not an easy thing to accomplish. You might also get one of Peter's koi slates at a special auction at events like the annual AKCA National Seminar. For many of you this could be your best opportunity to own one of Peter's unique pieces of koi art and help the AKCA PROJECT KHV at the same time.

Once the auction is concluded a check payable in $US to AKCA PROJECT KHV must be sent to AKCA PROJECT KHV, 15514 Elm Park, San Antonio, Texas 78247 and received within five business days. If it is not received on time, the 1st place bidder will default and the 2nd place bidder will be contacted and notified that they have won the auction.
